

General

How long are dissection specimens good? Do I need to refrigerate them?

The dissection specimens will remain preserved indefinitely, and no refrigeration is needed. In fact, they should not be refrigerated or frozen. If the specimens are going to be stored for more than six months, leave them in the containers supplied. They will come individually vacuum sealed, so as long as the original seal is unbroken, the specimens will remain usable.

Unique solution ID: #1158

Author: Jacey

Last update: 2019-08-02 17:10